Reports from Capetown declare that an immediate rupture of the dipiomat-ic relations between Great Britain and the Transvaal is expected. Quiet prevails at Cape Town, where it is reported the Boers have reached La-ings Neck. No exceptional activity was shown at the government offices today. Mr. Chamberisin and the Earl of Selborne were absent from the colonial office, but Lora Lansdowler, General Lord Wolsley and General Sir Evelyn Wood were builty engaged at the war office, General Sir Redvers Buller called at the war office this afternoon and a special board meeting was held. Naturally, nothing of the discussion was made public, but it is understood that General Sir Redvers Buller will not proceed to the Cape until next week, except in case of unforeseen developments.

Many members of parliament are re-turning to town in anticipation of an early summaning of the house of par-liament. It is the general impression that although speakers may express disapproval of the government policy, few will go to the extreme of voting against the required credit. It is con-sidered more probable they will ab-stain from participating in a division.

War For Annexation.

Boers Are Insulting.

A dispatch from Durban, Natal, timed 10:45 a. m., today, reports that all trains from the Transvall are arriving twenty-four hours late, having been obliged to give place to the Boer milliary trains. It is added that the trains which arrived have reening were packed and that the station was besieged by triends of the passengers. The latter gaid they had endured great hardships and had been subjected to insults by the Boers.

The dispatch, continuing, says that excitement is increasing at Durban. The streets are througed with animated crowds, and the impression prevails that the Boers may commence hostilities today. Altogether over 1,900 Natal volunteers have gone to the front. Trains from Lourenzo Marquez, Delagon bay, are bringing enormous crowds, principally miners. ## Absence of News.

The remarkable absence of news from South Africa this morning leads to the belief that there has been a widespread cutting of telegraph wires or that extra consorship has been established. There is no Transevaal news yet today to soften the excitement and belicosity of vesterday's dispatches of yesterday's disputches, belinesity of vesterday's dispatches, neither is there anything to indicate the authorities at Pretoria have the slightest desire to come to terms peacefully with Great Britain.

Had the Boers not determined to fight it out or if they were not prepared for hestillies, they would, it is thought, have sent some temporizing reply to Great Britain's dispatch. The hanging hack seems to be on Great Britain's side, where, in spite of the newspaper and war office talk of the mobilization of an army corps, the work is apparwas held tonight at Delmonico's for the purpose of discussing the Transvaal question. is inevitable.

The general drift of news indicates that the position of the British troops in South Africa is critical, owing to the delay in sending reinforcements, and in the event of hostilities, early reverses are regarded as probable.

The latest advices show that the Transvaal mobilization has been rapid and comprehensive. Many Boers, it is said, did not wait to be commandeered, but proceeded to the border spontaneously. the first fair held since statehood and as a whole it promises to be far and away ahead of previous exhibitions in almost every point. It would not be surprising if 10aw) people during the remainder of this week aid admissions to the fair grounds. In almost every department the exhibits are of a greater excellence, larger in variety and more in number than at any time hereofore.

State already has 7,000 men on the border. Cable company officials at the Care say it is impossible to reach Pretoria over the Durban line. The Cape Town to Pretoria line is still working, but it is glutted with official messages.

The officials at Charlestown have re-coived a telegram from the colonial sec-rctary in answer to an inquiry. In-structing them to remain absolutely still and offer no resistance. The wo-men have been leaving Volkerust and the natives are leaving Charlestown. The officials still remain, but are ready to leave at a moment's notice. General Joubert, the vice president of the South African republic and commander-in-chief of the Transvaal forces, has ar-rived at Volksrust and his presence there will probably have a calming ef-fect. Not all of the exhibits are yet in place and arranged, but all will be when the formal opening occurs at 2 o'clock today. All yesterday and far into the night a small army of exhibitors, carpenters, laborers, decorators, supervisors and fair employees were working energetically arranging exhibits. Probably because none of the fair directors are enthusiastically interested in sheep breeding and wool growing and have thereby falled to arouse the spirit of competition among flockmasters, the exhibit of sheep is rather limited, but what have been entered are of the choicest breeds, such as Ramboulett merinos, Prench merinos, Coiswolds, Southdowns, Shropshires and high-grade crosses.

In the swine department are interesting pens of the Berkshire, Chester and White Poland breeds and their progeny.

Only four small cases show the sample products of Utah mines. The display is well arranged, but its meagreness is apt to convince a stranger that Utah's mineral bearing capabilities are small, indeed. Admiral Dewey was particularly touched all along the lime by the number of children who turned out to see him. They formed a very large part of the crowd in every town, and wherever there was a school house the children had evidently been given a special recess to come out and cheer the train. There was another large crowd of children at Baltimore, and Admiral Dewey, who had come to the rear platform for the sixth or seventh time on the trip, said to the train master, who was standing by him, that he felt more touched and complimented by the attention of the children than by almost any other thing that had happened since his return to America.

The train, as it reached the line of the District of Columbia, stopped for a few minutes at the little station of Deanwood while the recordion committee went through the formality of presenting the nation's guest the freedom of the district. The ceremony was performed by District Commissioner Wight in the presence of the admiral's fleet captains, the military and naval members of the party and as many of the reception committee as could be crowded into the admiral's car.

John Addison Porter, secretary to the president, first extended President, McKinley's greetings to which the admiral returned his thanks very briefly. Commissioner Wright then said:

"Admiral Dewey, you are now in the District of Columbia, and, representing the commissioners of the district. I have the honor of tendering you the freedom of the mation's capital and in behalf of the people of the district from the most exalted to the humblest citiens, I give you a sincere and coedial welcome home. As he took his seat the cavalry troops at the word of command swung out into the street in front and, wheeling to the left, began the march up historic Pennsylvania avenue.

The entire escort being mounted, the party proceeded rapidly towards the White House, the cavalry at a trot, with the admiral and his immediate attendants closely following. There were scattered volleys of cheers, but the party moved so quickly that it was past the crowd on the avenue as a rule before it realized that Dewey had gone by:
